

Counselors' Corner

March 2023

This month's character trait: Cooperation

So, What is It?

Cooperation means working together to achieve a common goal.

Why is it Important?

Cooperation is an important character trait because by working with others, we learn different perspectives and strategies, and can express our own to teach others. It can also help to reach a goal much faster with someone than if we were working alone!

How can you Show Cooperation?

- I can put away the laundry that my sibling folds.
- I can water the plants while my parent mows the lawn.

We're here to help!

-I can take turns on the swings at the park with a friend.

- I can bring in the groceries with a family member.

- I can teach a younger sibling or family member how to do something.

- I can wait until it's my turn to speak during class time.

- I can clear the table after a meal while my parent does the dishes.

- I can take turns reading pages in a book with a grandparent.

- I can do my fair share on a group project.

- I can agree to take turns choosing a movie for movie night.
